The Influence of 19th Century Italian Genre Painting on Florentine Mosaics

By Dorothy Asher

Genre art portrays scenes of everyday life. Italian genre painting developed from the 17th century Dutch and Flemish painters, realistic, imagined and romanticized everyday people doing everyday activities. More importantly genre painting often portrayed sentimental domestic scenes popular with the middle class. Figurative genre motifs became extremely popular in many forms of the decorative arts.

Something Old

The Lizzadro Museum currently displays two outstanding genre based Florentine Mosaics. The “Old Folks” mosaics (as we call them) were believed to be based on earlier paintings. However we had no documentation of the paintings until now. “For Body and Soul” features an old peasant woman and man at a table. The man is eating a simple meal of beans and the woman is praying a rosary. The picture is based on an Aurelio Zingoni painting of the same name. The Museum’s “Old Folks Sharing Wine” is loosely based on “Happy Old Age” by the Italian painter Pietro Saltini. Dr. Anna Maria Massinelli’s book Painting in Stone sheds new light on the Italian ‘genre painters who brilliantly portrayed the life of peasants’.

"Old Folks At Table" 16 x 24 inches
by L. Gerbati

*circa early 20th century is based on the painting
"For Body and Soul" by Aurelio Zingoni.
The painting was replicated by mosaicists for decades.*

This unique blending of popular figurative subject matter examined the world of the domestic peasant classes in Italy and became very popular. 19th century Florentine genre painters inspired and often collaborated with the pietra dura mosaic workshops in Florence that continued well into the 20th century.

by G. Fiashi

*was completed in the 1950s.
G. Fiashi apprenticed with L. Gerbati before becoming a master mosaicist himself.*

Something New

This spring the Museum was fortunate to receive a donation of both a painting and mosaic of related subject matter. “The Chimney Sweep’s Meal” an oil painting by Aurelio Zingoni signed and dated 1882 and a Florentine mosaic of the same title by Giovanni Montelatici circa late 19th century. Both the painter and the mosaicist signed the mosaic. This proves the relationship between Italian genre painters and mosaicists. In many cases the paintings that the mosaics are based on are lost or in private collections. Very rarely does a painting relating to a mosaic come on to the market. Michael & Diane Werner generously donated the “The Chimney Sweep’s Meal” painting and mosaic to the Museum this spring. The pieces will be on display at the Museum beginning August 2.

University of Chicago Internships

The Museum will be hosting two interns from the University of Chicago this summer. The internships are developed from the UC Grad Chicago program that offers graduate students opportunities to obtain 'real world' work skills in their areas of study. As part of an ongoing effort to further explore the Museum's Chinese Collection within a historical and cultural context, the interns will research selected pieces to produce more information for exhibit interpretation, publications and programs. The interns chosen for this summer are Ying Zhang, M.A. in Religious Studies specializing in Taoist philosophy and Wuyutong Yao, M.A. in Social Science, history and anthropology specializing in Chinese Art History from the late Qing period to the Republic era. We are excited to begin a new era of research on the Museum's collection.

"Symbolism in Chinese Jade"

is an ongoing exhibit that features the Museum's permanent collection of jade carvings.

This exhibit focuses on a selection of carvings from the Qing Dynasty and translates the hidden meanings in their visual motifs.

On Sunday, August 28 at 2:00 p.m., Dr. Anna Maria Massinelli from Florence, Italy will present her new book Painting in Stone Modern Florentine Pietra Dure Mosaic that includes "The Chimney Sweep's Meal" and Florentine Mosaics in the Lizzadro Museum. She will discuss modern pietra dura and the collaborations that developed between painters and mosaic workshops during the 19th and 20th centuries. Her book is available in the Museum Shop and a book signing will take place after the lecture.

Admission is $10.00 per person; Museum members are free, light refreshments will be served. Reservations are recommended, phone: 630-833-1616 or email: info@lizzadromuseum.org. We hope to see you there!

VISITING ARTIST

Don Cronauer SILVERSMITHING

JUNE 21 TO DECEMBER 31, 2016

Don Cronauer demonstrating the lost wax technique.

Artist Statement

I have been a research chemical engineer for a number of years, and I started silversmithing to make creative and pretty articles as an extended hobby and avocation. I began silversmithing about 30 years ago when my wife invited me to join her at a jeweler's workshop. I soon began cutting and polishing opals using very crude homemade equipment. There was no more challenging and beautiful stone to work with! After preparing several stones, I had a difficult time selling the cut stones, so I progressed to silversmithing to mount them. As the quantity and price of good opal rough became harder to obtain, I stuck with silversmithing. After a few classes and volunteering as a teacher's aide at the College of DuPage jewelry department, along with membership in the Earth Science Club of Northern Illinois and the West Suburban Lapidary Club, I was able to buy a reasonable collection of used equipment and learn more about the craft. It is great to be able to make creative jewelry, demonstrate silversmithing at shows, get a few compliments, and be able to sell enough to cover costs. That's the ultimate avocation!

Silversmithing combines the techniques of lost wax casting, soldering, stone setting and polishing to create a finished piece of jewelry. Many lapidaries learn silversmithing as a way to set the stones they have cut. Long before 3D printing, artisans sculpted wax by hand to create silver, bronze, brass, or gold jewelry. This ancient process is called lost-wax casting. Once a mold is made, it can be used to produce multiple castings of a unique design. Artists have been using this method to create jewelry for over 5,000 years. Don Cronauer has been a member of the Lizzadro Museum for over 25 years. An exhibit of his work will be on display in the Visiting Artist's case June 21 through December 31, 2016. He will present a demonstration on silversmithing techniques including lost wax casting and fabrication of rings and pendants in October. Details will be posted in our next newsletter.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS JULY THROUGH SEPTEMBER 2016

SPECIAL EXHIBIT "Minerals in Food"

featuring the Rock Café

JUNE 14 THROUGH SEPTEMBER 18, 2016

Nutritious foods contain minerals that are important to maintaining a healthy body. This exhibit shows a sampling of important minerals found in food and how they help the body function. The Rock Café features 3 balanced meals made of stone. Come in and see what minerals are part of a nutritious diet. Regular Museum Hours and Admission. The Rock Café was generously donated to the Museum by the Josefeck Family in 2013.

Warning: Eating rocks will lead to broken teeth!

JULY 23 "Volcanoes"

Geologist Sara Kurth presents an interactive lecture on volcanoes. Discuss the mechanisms of how volcanoes work, and compare different eruption styles. This presentation focuses on recent volcanic eruptions and explores how volcanoes can both positively and negatively effect local and global communities. Hands-on specimens will be available to see and touch.

Lecture - 2:00 p.m. - 60 minutes

Youth to Adult

Regular Museum Admission

Museum Members Free

Reservations Recommended

JULY 29

"Fossil Collecting Field Trip"

Travel by motor coach to Vulcan Quarry in Sycamore, Illinois. Collect Silurian and Ordovician Period marine fossils in shale and limestone. Collectable fossils include: brachiopods, cephalopods, corals, crinoids, gastropods, and more.

Field Trip - Ages 8 yrs. to Adult

Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

Fee: $45.00 per person, Museum Members $40.00

Reservations Required: 630-833-1616

AUGUST 20

"Start Your Rockin' Collection!"

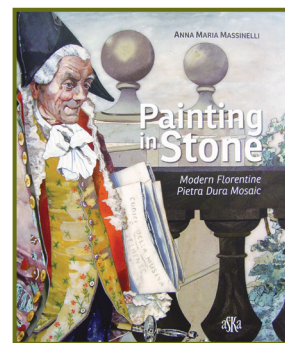

Create your very own, personalized rock collection! Egg cartons and materials for decoration and personalization are provided. Each child can choose several rocks to start or fill in their collection carton. Rocks from home can also be brought in for identification.

Workshop - 2:00 p.m. - 60 minutes

Ages 5 to 10 yrs.

Fee: $5.00 per person, Museum Members Free

Reservations Required: 630-833-1616
